PIXEL PALACE

Marketing and Brand Guidelines

PP-MKT-001 | Version 1.0 (proposed) | Status: Draft for review

Startup Launch and Business Development Consultancy Team

Brand promise: Level up your day.

1. Purpose, scope and governance

This guideline keeps Pixel Palace's public identity, marketing decisions and customer-facing claims consistent, recognizable and ethical across social media, promotions, events, signage, the website and direct outreach. It applies to all staff and any freelancer, agency or partner publishing on the company's behalf.

The HR/Sales/Marketing Manager owns marketing execution and brand consistency. The Marketing Executive prepares content and campaign reports; the Sales Executive shares qualified leads and customer questions. The CEO reviews material campaigns, major partnerships and reputation-sensitive statements. The Owner approves the brand identity and material commitments or exceptions.

Approval rule: Do not publish unapproved prices, discounts, guarantees, sponsorship claims, partnerships, customer images or statements about competitors. Until a formal approval matrix is signed, obtain written approval from the HR/Sales/Marketing Manager and CEO for paid campaigns, material promotions and sensitive public responses.

2. Audience and positioning

Primary audiences

- Students and young adults seeking social gaming, friendly competition and a place to spend leisure time.
- Friend groups and casual players looking for accessible entertainment and group experiences.
- Families and parents considering supervised, age-appropriate recreation (where the venue's facilities and policies support it).
- Organizers of birthdays, group outings, community events or small corporate team activities.

Positioning statement

Pixel Palace is a welcoming Karachi gaming zone where people can play, compete and connect in an energetic environment. The brand should communicate fun, fair play, reliable service, safety and value—not unsupported claims of being the biggest, cheapest or best.

Brand promise and proof

Tagline: "Level up your day." Support the promise with observable evidence: clear pricing, maintained equipment, helpful staff, fair rules, transparent booking terms and timely responses.

3. Brand identity and voice

Visual identity

Use the approved Pixel Palace logo artwork consistently. Keep its proportions, spacing and legibility; do not stretch, recolor, rotate, add effects or rebuild it from text without approval. Use a clear-space buffer around the logo and avoid placing it on busy backgrounds. Maintain a one-color version for low-cost printing when needed.

Proposed starter palette (confirm against the final logo before adoption): deep navy #172554 for trust and headings; electric blue #2563EB for action and highlights; white #FFFFFF for clean space; light grey #F3F4F6 for neutral backgrounds. Use strong contrast for readable text and do not rely on color alone to communicate important information.

Typography: use a clean, legible sans-serif consistently. Use no more than two font families in one asset. Photos and videos should show the actual venue, equipment and experience where possible; obtain permission before identifiable customer images are published.

Brand voice

- Energetic, welcoming and gaming-aware, without excluding beginners.
- Clear and honest about prices, duration, age suitability, availability, terms and limitations.
- Respectful and inclusive; no insults, slurs, harassment, discriminatory jokes or shaming of skill level.
- Confident but not boastful. Avoid guarantees of wins, earnings, health benefits or results.

4. Social media and content operations

Only authorized account owners may publish, reply, run ads or change account settings. Use company-controlled email and MFA where available; keep recovery codes secure and never share passwords in group chats. At least two authorized administrators should be documented, with access removed promptly when a person leaves or changes role.

Before publishing, check spelling, prices, dates, booking links, permissions, brand assets, accessibility, music/image licensing and whether the post could mislead. Do not post customer personal data, private messages, CCTV footage, payment details, staff records or incident details.

Proposed weekly content calendar

Day / cadence	Content theme	Example / purpose
Monday	Community & week ahead	Opening hours, weekly highlights, booking reminders
Tuesday	Game / feature spotlight	Explain available games, stations or play formats accurately
Wednesday	Engagement	Poll, trivia or a skill challenge with clear rules
Thursday	Offer / group booking	Approved offer with dates, exclusions and capacity limits
Friday	Weekend energy	Venue clips or event promotion with permissions
Saturday	Live community	Approved event coverage; moderate comments actively
Sunday	Recap & feedback	Share permitted highlights, thank visitors, invite feedback
Monthly	Campaign review	Report spend, leads, bookings, conversion and lessons

Suggested starting cadence is 4–6 feed posts per week plus stories when there is useful content; treat this as a proposal, not a mandatory quota. Prioritize useful, accurate content over volume. Schedule posts in advance, but pause scheduled promotional content during serious incidents or community-sensitive events.

5. Advertising, campaigns and lead generation

Campaign brief and approval

- Define one objective: awareness, qualified leads, visits, group bookings, repeat visits or event attendance.
- Specify target audience and geographic reach; avoid targeting or excluding people on sensitive personal characteristics.
- Set dates, budget, offer terms, capacity, landing/booking route, owner and success metric before launch.
- Verify claims, spelling, prices, eligibility, exclusions and end date. Keep a copy of the approved creative and final terms.
- Monitor results during the campaign; stop or correct an ad promptly if it is inaccurate, unavailable or generating complaints.

Lead generation channels

- Organic social posts, short-form video and community engagement.
- Paid social campaigns with a defined budget and a measurable booking or inquiry route.
- Referral prompts and repeat-visit offers with transparent terms.

- Group and event outreach to schools, universities, clubs, community groups and businesses, subject to appropriate permissions and respectful contact practices.
- Website inquiry forms, phone/WhatsApp inquiries and walk-in interest, with consent-based follow-up and restricted access to lead data.

Record each lead in the approved CRM or lead register: date, source, inquiry type, status, next action, assigned staff member and outcome. Collect only information needed to respond. Do not buy, scrape or upload contact lists without a lawful basis and appropriate permission.

6. Marketing KPIs and reporting

The following are proposed initial targets for the first three months and must be reviewed against budget, opening capacity and actual demand. Do not report impressions or followers as if they were sales.

KPI	How to measure	Proposed review
Qualified leads	Leads with a real inquiry and usable next step	Weekly; baseline first month
Lead response compliance	Leads answered within the approved response target ÷ leads received	Weekly; proposed ≥90%
Lead-to-booking conversion	Bookings attributable to leads ÷ qualified leads	Monthly; establish baseline, then improve
Cost per lead	Campaign spend ÷ attributable qualified leads	Per campaign
Campaign return	Attributable gross profit or revenue compared with campaign spend; define method consistently	Monthly
Engagement rate	Interactions ÷ reach or impressions; use the same denominator over time	Weekly
Reputation response	Public complaints acknowledged within internal target	Weekly; proposed within 1 business day
Data completeness	Required lead fields completed ÷ leads recorded	Monthly; proposed ≥95%

Marketing Executive prepares a weekly dashboard. HR/Sales/Marketing Manager reviews performance with Sales Executive, explains variance, and recommends changes. Finance Director verifies campaign spend and related financial reporting. CEO reviews monthly results; material budget changes require the applicable approval.

7. Testimonials, reviews and truthful claims

- Ask for clear permission before using a customer’s name, image, video, voice, quote or identifiable review in promotional material. Explain the channel and intended use; record permission and any limits.
- Do not invent testimonials, buy fake reviews, suppress legitimate criticism, alter a quote to change its meaning or imply that a typical result is guaranteed.
- If an incentive is offered for feedback, disclose it clearly and do not require a positive rating.
- Use accurate prices and state taxes/fees, time limits, blackout dates, eligibility, capacity and material conditions clearly before the customer commits.
- Do not claim “best,” “number one,” “safest,” “cheapest,” “official partner” or similar unless the claim is current, substantiated and approved.
- Use only owned, licensed or permission-cleared photos, music, logos, fonts and game-related creative assets; respect third-party intellectual property.

Keep evidence for material claims (approved price lists, offer terms, partner authorization, customer consent and source data) in the marketing records folder. Ask the Documentation & Compliance Coordinator to confirm any uncertain legal, consent or retention requirement before a campaign proceeds.

8. Reputation monitoring and response

Check social inboxes, reviews, tags and relevant mentions at least once each business day, with coverage arranged for scheduled events. Record serious complaints or safety allegations immediately. Do not argue, speculate, blame the customer or disclose private information in public.

Issue	Response procedure
Routine question	Answer using approved information; if unsure, acknowledge and route to the relevant team.
Service complaint	Acknowledge politely, ask for details privately, log the issue, assign an owner and follow up with the outcome.
Incorrect public information	Correct the post promptly and transparently; retain the original and correction in the record.
Safety, injury, harassment, privacy or legal allegation	Escalate immediately to Supervisor/Operations Officer and CEO; involve Security Manager or Documentation & Compliance Coordinator as appropriate. Do not publish incident details without approval.
Threat, viral post or media inquiry	Preserve evidence, notify CEO promptly and use one authorized spokesperson. Do not speculate or delete evidence.

Suggested internal target: acknowledge ordinary complaints within one business day. Critical safety, privacy or legal issues must be escalated immediately, consistent with the existing incident response targets. Never promise a refund, compensation or admission of liability outside approved authority.

9. Records, review and adoption

Retain approved artwork, campaign briefs, ad spend reports, offer terms, consent records, lead reports and significant complaint records in access-controlled company storage. Limit access to staff who need it for their role.

Review this guideline every 12 months, or earlier after a significant brand, platform, legal or operational change. CEO reviews revisions and Owner approves final adoption. Proposed palette, KPIs and posting cadence remain drafts until approved.
